

A Restoring Eden speaking tour

Ankle-Deep in reality ...

A first-hand account of the real impacts of climate change upon the land, families, churches and the fragile island communities of the South Pacific.

Rev. Tafue Molu Lusama is from the island of Tuvalu in the South Pacific. Raised Christian, he was also raised in a traditional island style. Rev. Lusama pastored congregations throughout the South Pacific before becoming the program officer for Peace and Justice in 2002. As part of his position, Rev. Lusama studied in Taiwan for a Master of Arts in Religion where he wrote a thesis on the theological perspectives of climate change.

As part of his current advocacy work, Rev. Lusama established the Tuvalu Climate Action Network (TuCAN) in 2006. As chairman he represented Tuvalu in important negotiations in Kenya and Poland. In addition, Rev. Lusama has been advocating for his people in the USA (New York City), Norway, Australia and New Zealand, appealing to the industrialized countries to consider Tuvalu's very survival from their daily individual decisions to their political decisions.
